FOREWORD

In this age of holograms and wholefoods, Concorde and computers how can we explain the enduring appeal of the British Royal Family? For there can be no doubt that they are popular, despite the ritual complaints of republicans and radicals.

Anyone who has heard the roaring approval of the crowds massed outside Buckingham Palace on state occasions knows that there is more to the Monarchy than their role as central pivot for pageantry and pomp.

The crowd's attitude to their Queen is unique, compounded of respect, a certain healthy curiosity, but above all affection, a very special kind of admiration that seems particularly British.

Perhaps the most noticeable aspect of the relationship between crown and commons is the fact that it endures, remaining constant through thick or thin, in times of national sickness and of health, something that's almost entirely due to the resilient flexibility of the institution.

As times have changed so has the Royal Family, not suddenly or dramatically, not running after passing fads or fashions, but moving slowly, steadily, like a great ocean liner responding to the helm. Fifty years ago it was literally unthinkable that television cameras would be allowed to film the Royal Family's private moments, that the grandson of the Sovereign should start his life without a title, or that the names of members of the family should appear in the Divorce Courts. In the last few years all these things have come to pass and still the family survives unscathed.

As guardians of a long and continuous tradition the Monarchy cannot afford to take change lightly, but traditions cannot be regarded as a substitute for clear thinking and in recent years the Royal Family has demonstrated its healthy respect for both. In this, as in most other things, it is the Queen herself who has led the family.

It is of course the Queen that we first think of when we think of royalty: dignified, serene, perhaps at times understandably pensive, but always unmistakably royal. Having served her apprenticeship in public she now provides the unshakeable sense of leadership that has helped to establish her family as a still strong centre in the storm of contemporary life.

30	But above all it is surely the family itself that accounts for the Monarchy's enduring appeal. For in the Royal Family there is something for everybody, a gallery of types and characters that mirrors the national characteristics of the British people. We have a truly loveable grandmother, a sister who's determined to live her life the way she wants to, and a son who shows great promise. Now, with the wedding of that son to a 35	fairy-tale princess, we have another valuable addition to the family and another set of pictures to stick into our family album.

Passage B: Poetry

Veitongo

- After Kaveh Akbar

The bakery flows with the scent of rainwater.

A fresh loaf is split in two, it gushes rainwater.

The iron roofing ripples with rainwater.

You cut your leg upon it, it bled rainwater.

5 Rainwater flows through the air conditioner.

The plastic piping carries rainwater to the concrete tank,

Which is made of rainwater itself.

A louvre slides out of its frame,

Its shards are rainwater.

Rainwater is buried under hot stones and tarpaulin.

Children run across the road to buy rainwater for their family;

They are rainwater themselves.

Rainwater rings through the air on a Sunday morning.

Aunties and uncles laugh loudly, passing around rainwater.

Their laughs are overflowing with rainwater.

Subwoofers in car boots ooze rainwater.

The machete is taken to a coconut,

Rainwater rushes out of it.

I sent you a poem before the waves took out communications.

20 My words were rainwater.

SECTION B: LANGUAGE FOR RESPONSE AND EXPRESSION: LITERATURE

Develop a critical response to specified aspect (s) of a text using supporting evidence.

Choose Only TWO questions from this section (Questions 1 – 7).

Answer Only ONE option from each of the questions you have selected.

Each question is worth 20 scores. Each essay should be at least 400 words long.

For each questions answered, indicate clearly the number of the question and the letter of the option you have selected.

Do not use material you have used or plan to use elsewhere in the paper.

QUESTION 1: SHAKESPEAREAN DRAMA

Either OPTION A:

With reference to a Shakespearean drama, you have studied in class this year, describe a hero or heroine that you found had the qualities you most admire in a person. Discuss how the hero or heroine brings out a significant lesson in the play.

Or OPTION B:

"A Shakespearean play usually has at its centre a conflict of loyalties, or ideals, or desires"

Discuss this statement as it is exemplified in a Shakespearean play you have studied in class this year.

QUESTION 2: NON-SHAKESPEAREAN DRAMA

Either OPTION A:

With reference to a non-Shakespearean drama, you have studied in class this year, describe the stage sets, costumes and lighting. Discuss how they would contribute to the total dramatic effect.

Or OPTION B:

"A dramatist may set his play in another age but its characters and values must have relevance to our age"

Discuss what the relevant features are in a non-Shakespearean play you have studied in class this year.

QUESTION 3: POETRY

Either OPTION A:

What is meant by "imagery" in poetry? With reference to TWO poems, you have studied in class this year, explain and illustrate its functions and importance of imagery.

Or OPTION B:

"In poetry, words may swell into immense visions when we add our own experience and imagination"

Discuss how this statement is revealed in TWO poems you have studied in class this year.

QUESTION 4: NOVEL

Either OPTION A:

With reference to a novel, you have studied in class this year, discuss to what extent it is a story about people travelling towards "truth" or "reality".

Or OPTION B:

"The novel exposes us to problems and tensions in a fictional world, so that we can better endure the tensions and problems of the real world"

Discuss this statement with reference to a novel you have studied in class this year.

QUESTION 5: SHORT STORY

Either OPTION A:

With reference to TWO short stories, you have studied in class this year, discuss how the author "pleases" and "instructs" its readers.

Or OPTION B:

"The title of a story usually gives a clear indication of the writer's point of view. With the title the author focuses your attention where he/she wants it to be"

Discuss how this is true in TWO short stories you have studied in class this year.

QUESTION 6: NON-FICTION

Either OPTION A:

With reference to a work of Non-Fiction Prose, you have studied in class this year, describe the picture the author presents of the society of his own times, and discuss how the author created this picture.

Or OPTION B:

Discuss how a work of Non-Fiction Prose you have studied in class this year, is a "literary work of high quality".

QUESTION 7: FILM

Either OPTION A:

With reference to two or more scenes in a film you have studied in class, discuss how these scenes summarized the messages effectively.

Or OPTION B:

Example: Motivational/inspirational quote from the film X-Men: Days of Future Past:

"Just because someone stumbles and loses their path, doesn't mean they're lost forever" by Professor X

Most if not all films have a motivational or an inspirational quote like the example given above that have become famous worldwide. Describe a sentence or phrase that was spoken by an actor or actress in a film you have studied in class and discuss how it can inspire or motivate people all over the world. Use the film to support your answer.
